Covid-19 has created an unprecedented phenomenon the world ever experienced. Every walk of life is rippled by this decorated virus. It poses a new challenge before the academic community and learners as well. Digital platform is only the safe way to reach out to the students. The academia has been trying to switch over from the conventional mode of teaching to online-digitized mode. Naturally faculties need to be prepared for this new challenge. A well versed in digital mode of teaching is the prerequisite for successful transmission of knowledge to the learners. Faculty member armed with technical know-how can be a successful one in the new mode of delivery mechanism. But a certain percentage of teachers find it difficult to cope up with this new normal situation. Reason varies from reluctance to the lack of technical skill. It is equally important to change our mind-set and to take up the challenge of new normal situation.
