DEPARTMENTAL SEMINAR: REPORT SUMMARY

Topic: "Reinvention of Tradition: Ovid and the Modernists"

Category: Research Area

Date: 26.11.2019 (Tuesday)

Time: 11.15 a.m. – 1.15 p.m.

Venue: Vivekananda Seminar Hall

Name of Resource Person: Dr. Sudeshna Majumdar

No. of Participants: 55

Description: As part of a collaborative venture between Chandidas Mahavidyalaya and Rampurhat College for mutual academic benefit, the occasion was graced by the presence of our honorable guest, Dr. Sudeshna Majumdar, who imparted valuable knowledge to the students on the given area. Our students were considerably enriched by her versatility and her way of presenting the content in a simple way. Her talk was full of inspirational value and bears the answer to our students' questions in every possible way. The session was attended by students of all the semesters and the chosen topic helped them comprehend and appreciate the interrelated nature of tradition and modernity as expressed and represented in western literature.

Thrust Area

- Dr. Majumdar laid special emphasis in her lecture on the scope for research related to the given topic.
- Since her talk centered around both the classical and the modernist approaches to literature, she was able to point out to the students how such shifting perspectives can be applied to specific texts or genres to enrich our understanding which, in turn, can offer new avenues for research.
- She drew the students' attention to other research articles and theses where such comparative study has already been undertaken and mentioned the need for comparative study not just within the same discipline but also that of inter-disciplinary research.
- She cited research articles and papers to augment her ideas and tried to motivate the students to think of newer ways of applying theoretical knowledge towards analyzing texts both within and outside of the scope of the current syllabus and to focus on the merits of research-oriented thought to contribute to the existing body of knowledge on the subject.
